

Grandparents' Passover Commitments

As grandparents, we are the keepers of our family's story, traditions, and values. The choices we make today shape the Jewish future for our children and grandchildren.

Just as our ancestors passed down the story of Exodus, it is our responsibility to ensure that Judaism lives on. This Passover, make a commitment that strengthens your connection to the Jewish future — one that ensures your grandchildren inherit the legacy you cherish.

Choose from the following statements that resonate for you.

Tonight, at the seder table, I commit that I will:

-  Love my grandchildren unconditionally.
-  Respect and support their parents' choices in raising them.
-  Share my love of Judaism, Jewish values, and the Jewish people in a joyful and welcoming way.
-  Recognize and support Israel as the homeland of the Jewish people.

Words alone are not enough. Action secures our legacy.
